

DDCI REMARKS TO THE 544 STRATEGIC INTELLIGENCE WING

8 October 1983

I. Introduction

II. Changes in the International System

1. Rise of middle power states and diffusion of influence
2. Growth of non-state actors
3. Multilateral alliances less cohesive
4. One continuity: the Soviet threat

III. Implications for Intelligence

1. Greater number and complexity of intelligence problems
2. Need to develop capability on transnational issues
3. Need for greater flexibility in collection system and organizational structure

IV. Special Concerns of Today

1. Soviet use of surrogates and activities in the Third World
2. Technology Transfer
3. International Terrorism
4. Nuclear Proliferation
5. Debtor Nations

V. Conclusion